

Space Topic Slated

From Kitty Hawk To The Moon will be the subject of an address John W. Paup, vice president and manager of North American Aviation's Apollo moon program, will deliver at the Torrance Airport Days banquet next Sunday evening.

The banquet will be held beginning at 7 p.m. at the Jump 'N Jack restaurant, 2900 Pacific Coast Hwy. in Torrance. A limited number of dinner reservations are available. Reservations can be made by telephoning the Torrance Chamber of Commerce, FA 8-2914.

As Apollo manager, Paup wrestles the daily problems associated with designing and building the Apollo spacecraft scheduled to carry three Americans on a round trip to the moon before 1970.

WELL KNOWN

Outstanding in the fields of aeronautics and electronics Paup is well known for his pioneering activities in electronic countermeasures (ECM), a field in which he is a recognized authority in both military and industrial circles.

As an Air Force officer, he headed the group that produced the RB-47 electronic reconnaissance aircraft. It was due to his efforts while chief of ECM for the Strategic Air Command, and later while directing ECM development and procurement at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio, that ECM gear was installed on all B-52 and B-47 aircraft. He is a veteran of more than 4,000 hours flying aircraft ranging from the B-18 to the B-52.

WORKED ON B-70

While at North American Aviation, he directed the electronic sub-systems project on the B-70 Valkyrie. Immediately prior to joining the Space and Information with the Utah Division of Systems Division, he was Sperry Rand where he managed the U.S. Army's Sergeant Missile Program.

Paup majored in electrical engineering at Los Angeles City College and business administration at the University of Omaha.

MADAM ALICE EHLERS, world famed harpsichordist, will appear in concert Friday in Campus Theater at El Camino College. Madam Ehlers will be joined in 8:30 concert by violinist Eudice Shapiro.

Famed Concert Duo Slated For El Camino College Event

Harpsichordist Madam Alice Ehlers and violinist Eudice Shapiro will be featured in concert Friday at 8:30 p.m. in the El Camino College Campus Theater.

Dr. Ehlers was born in Vienna, Austria, where she received her first musical training at an early age.

She studied piano with Theodore Leschetitzky and harmony and counterpoint which Dr. Karl Weigl. Later she studied harpsichord for four years under Wanda Landowska at the Berlin State Academy.

Her research into early music and the history of old instruments was made under Dr. Curt Sachs and Johannes Wolff. Upon leaving the academy she won the Mendelssohn prize.

In Berlin she had a trio with Paul Hindemith (Viola d'amore) and founded the Friends of Old Music, a concert group whose aim it was to bring back unknown and forgotten music of the 17th and 18th Centuries back into the repertoire.

Mme. Ehlers has been professor of music at the University of Southern California, where she teaches the harpsichord and gives classes in the interpretation of 18th Century music for instrumentalists and vocalists.

Violinist Eudice Shapiro grew up in Buffalo, N. Y., where she learned music with her father, from the ages of 4 to 13. In high school she took lessons at the Eastman School of Music and from there went to the Rochester School of Music. She has also studied at the Curtis Institute of Philadelphia.

She has played at Carnegie Hall, given concerts in most of the cities of Europe and in many of the major cities of the U.S.

Miss Shapiro chose music because "Music always surrounded me. We were a musical family. My father played the violin. I'd guess you would say we had an inborn feeling of music," she said.
